

Veterans History Project

Congressman Murtha encourages all veterans to participate in the Library of Congress Veterans History Project by recording their memories and sharing their personal letters, diaries and photographs from their military experiences. Our veterans have played a significant role in the history of this great Nation. We need to preserve that history by safeguarding the stories of those who served.

The effort is being lead nationally by the Library of Congress American Folklife Center. Locally, California University of Pennsylvania is working to compile and catalog information as part of regional project that will become part of the Library of Congress. For further informaiton on the project and to find out how you can participate, please contact:
